Presidential Oath-Taking Noon Wednesday

Celebrating Shifts Into High Gear Today For Johnson's Inauguration No Relief In Sight

celebrating for President Johnson's inaugural hits top speed today, and anyone with enough energy - and enough tickets can keep partying until late at night. With luncheons, receptions, dinner dances and an inaugural concert by the National Symphony, there isn't an open moment on the schedule.

Almost everything, including the weather, seems set for the whole point of this business: the taking of the presidential oath in front of the Capitol at noon Wednesday. Only the inaugural address remains unfinished, and Johnson is expected to keep puttering with it until a few hours before delivery time.

On that most important item, the weather, Johnson's luck appears to be holding out.

After hinting that it might snow on Johnson's great day, the weatherman backtracked and now sticks to the prediction that none is likely to fall. But bitter cold will remain, making it rough on those who are in, or who are out watching. the 21/2-hour parade.

Today's highlights include a reception for Vice Presidentelect Hubert H. Humphrey, a reception for governors that will be so crowded the guests will be herded in in three hourly shifts. and a dance and reception for Young Democrats.

Popular Demand And Supply

All over the nation, President Johnson's countrymen are putting their thoughts in order about his presidency as he takes office in his own elected right.

He is president by popular demand. The election last Nov. 3 proved that.

He thinks it is his duty to maintain his popularity by being responsive to the people's desires. He believes in government by consensus.

This has caused him to be accused of wanting to be all things to all men. It has earned him a nickname — "Big

In more dignified terminology, the President says he wants to be "president of all the people"-the ambition that President Eisenhower cherished at the outset of his two terms in the presidency.

This is in contrast with the ambition of recent presidents like Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman. They wanted to be leaders of political factions. They wanted to be generals of militant politico-social forces dedicated to all-out war against "malefactors of great wealth."

MR. JOHNSON has only two wars in view-"war against poverty" and a "war

His political opponents characterize him as a wheeler-dealer, Texas style. His defenders say Texas-style wheeling and dealing is not conspicuous in Texas, where no one thinks too much about it.

And so on through a long list of minuses and pluses in the public character of Lyndon B. Johnson.

If You Shovel, Take It Easy

Like it or not, when the white stuff falls it generally has to be shoveled.

The alarming thing, however, is that the simple act of shoveling snow of f drives and walks kills hundreds of people ever winter. Your chances of suffering a fatal or disabling heart attack increase with age. But you can shovel snow and survive by following a few simple rules.

Approach the chore leisurely. Take a cue from the athlete and warm up first to loosen muscles and stimulate circulation. Use a small shovel with a sharp edge. Do your work before eating, or walt an hour after eating when the heart is no longer working overtime to bring blood to digestive organs.

Rest a few minutes if you begin to feel out of breath. Stop immediately if there is a tightness in the chest or pain beneath the breastbone.

It Never Was That Bad

Ohioans who have been stunned by statements that education in their state is being made to subsist on turnip tops will welcome some statistics from the Department of Taxation's research and statistics section. Instead of being at the bottom of the academic barrel with a state like Mississippi, where our school lobbyists say we are. Ohio is tenth in the country in its support of public education. Of the industrial states, only New York, California and New Jersey pay more per pupil than Ohio's $587, according to Department of Taxation statistics based on the 1963 school

This is above the national average of

What, then, accounts for the difference in statistics on school spending?

Kennedy Maps Course As Senator

An executive in New York's Hotel Commodore banquet department scheduled the Robert Kennedy breakfast with prominent labor leaders in Presiden-Suite last Thursday morning. Few noticed the quixotic touch. They were too intent on meeting with the new sen- Victor Riesel ator - and it was, indeed, a new senator, a new Bob Kennedy, they met over the scrambled eggs and orange slices. He was cheerful and outgoing. He warned them he was not about to take the Senate by storm. They could not count on him for wheeling and dealing, because he was 98th on the Senate seniority list of 100 and was hardly moving up fast.

He told the influential labor chiefs, including the Teamsters regional vice president Johnny O'Rourke, that he would fight for repeal of the Taft-Hartley clause "14B" which permits bans on the union shop in 20 states. He asked for their advice, support and direct guidance.

He was setting a new pace, offering a new face. Those close to him said he would spend two or three days a week in his new home state. There would be hard studying of every foot of New York.

THERE WILL be no radio and television broadcasts, no ribbon-cutting, no major speeches or mass interviews.

Sen. Bob Kennedy does not plan to make any formal talks out of the state - except to fill the few commitments made in behalf of the John F. Kennedy Library.

A guide to his plans is in his activity during the first months of the Kennedy administration. Those were the days he was accused of being too youthful for an attorney general. He gave no press conferences, he made no speeches for months after being sworn in. Finally. on May 2, 1961, he flew down to the University of Georgia Law School for a definitive talk on his approach to civil liberties and the handling of his depart-

Thus it will be in the making of a senator. Those around him swear that he has not engaged in intra-party politics, local or national. He is devoting himself to a "new focus" on government service.

WHEN HE WROTE to the senatorial powers for committee assignments, his first wish was for the Senate Foreign Relations group. He knew that places on it were scarce and sought after. His next choices were the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, and Government Operations. But he did not choose the latter out of any desire to continue as an investigator. He wants to change that image.

It has been with him ever since 1951, when he signed on with the Justice Department, and specialized in the prosecution of graft and income tax cases.

Now he believes he has contributed heavily to the vast area of investigations and prosecutions. During his administration new laws were passed hitting at the criminal syndicates. The FBI built its anti - organized crime and racketeering machinery and put it into high gear. With Jim Hoffa facing a total of 13 years in the federal penitentiary, Sen. Kennedy feels that this "menace" has been

THE JUSTICE Department is reporting a 1,000 per cent increase in the conviction of criminals over the last three years. Now that he is on the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee and Government Operations, as well as in the District of Columbia group, he feels that he wants to change his sociological base of activity. He wants to ride the circuit in New York State. He finds fascination in the smaller communities. He is delving deeply into the problems of the overcrowded urban centers. He is studying urban renewal, slum communities, congested transportation, social conflicts in the massive concrete concentrations.

As much as he can he is devouring reports and listening to discussions on juvenile delinquency, employment problems, race relations and especially education and its complexities.

IN A FEW MONTHS he will make a definitive speech somewhere in the State. It will cover many of the problems in his new dimensions.

But the new found warmth should not be mistaken for any sign of weakness. He can jab as well as jest. He may be a new senator, but he is a mighty secure senator. And there is no hesitancy to remind those around him during amiable talks that he defeated Sen. Keating by an 800,000 vote margin.

'New Low' Talk Called False Picture

Brainwashing - the political technique of playing on the ignorance or indifference of the public - seems to have been,

e f f e ctively utilized in the message o p foreign a i d? which President Johnson has sent to Congress. Many a headline i n the press em-President's comment that his phasized t h e David Lawrence "request" for $3.38 billion "is the smallest in the history of the foreign aid program" since it was started in 1948. A "request" for an appropriation is far different from an actual authorization by Congress, and what was glossed over is the fact that the President's "request" this year is higher than what was actually appropriated for foreign aid for fiscal year 1963 as well as for 1964, 1860, 1958, 1956 and 1955.

So a "request" for a sum which is slightly lower than what was requested last year is not in itself of any real significance, particularly when it is $150 million more than last year's appropriation and $380 million more than has appropriated the year before that.

WHAT IS MORE important is that, while the President used the figure of $3.38 billion as his "request," he inserted at the same time in his message a separate "request" for another $750 million for aid to Latin Yet the public is being told, in effect, that the total amount the administration is asking from Congress for "foreign aid" is only $3.38 billion. Actually, by adding one third of the $750 million of "multi-national aid" for Latin America, the total "request" becomes $3.63 billion. This is higher than the total of last year's "request" as well as the "request" in several of the preceding

A THIRD "REQUEST" by the President in his message is not spelled out. He says the amount asked for the Viet Nam operation may not be enough and that he is requesting "an additional standby authorization for military or supporting assistance which would be used only in Viet Nam." He also warns that he will ask Congress for more funds if "situations should arise which require additional amounts of U.S. assistance to advance U.S. vital in-

There is also an accumulation of unexpended funds from previous years which can at any time be used for the original purpose as long as it comes within the scope of the language of the laws authorizing such expenditures.

It's estimated that $6.5 billion appropriated by Congress in past years has not yet been spent but each year Congress is nevertheless asked to keep on appropriating more money without regard to these previously authorized but unspent

The President's message, therefore, does not tell just how much will be taken out of the U.S. Treasury for "foreign aid" this fiscal year or next year. The impression is being given that spending for foreign aid is to be at a record low, when this is not the case at all.

THE PRESIDENT is, of course, trying to convince Congress that the estimates this year are much more of a "rock bottom" nature than they have been in the past.

The attitude of Congress in cutting down on presidential "requess" for foreign aid in recent years has brought about a much more careful study of the "requests" before they are submitted to Congress. Last year, when the President asked for $3.51 billion, Congress appropriated all but $266 million, and Mr. Johnson explained then that he was giving a much more realistic estimate of the performance which could be expected among the recipient countries.

In the past, officials had apparently based their requests on what they hoped could be spent effectively, but they were unable to judge just how much of the funds authorized could be expended within a given period. It's the attempt to end such guesswork which has brought the new "requests" down to a far more accurate projection of the foreign aid program this

In a broad sense, however, the expenditures are just about as high as they have been before. Indeed, in the coming year they will be higher that in many of the preceding years

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW

Sheriff Van Fossan's annual report in The Review states that he accepted 403 sets of fox feet and ears for bounty during the year. In other words, my fellow taxpayers, $1,209 of your tax money was given to men for killing and mutilating foxes under the shortsighted, wasteful and cruel bounty system. Why are foxes thus treated when in reality they are more of a help than a hindrance to a farmer, for their diet consists mainly of rodents, including the destructive field mice.

I questioned the bounty policy once and the answer given me by the county employe was because of their susceptibility to rabies! It is true that they are susceptible, but many animals, including man himself, succumb to that disease, so why should foxes be singled out. Men would be much more likely to contract rabies from dogs, but no one considers putting a bounty on them.

A few years ago the commissioners neglected to provide for a bounty. Were there any ill effects in the county - the answer is 'no'.

The only ones adversely affected by the omission were the bounty hunters - the men who dig the mother foxes out of their dens, kill them, dispatch the young by dashing out their brains and then cut off their feet and ears. If we shrink from this bloody picture we should not be so squeamish, for after all, we are paying these men to do this. In 1963, the bounty was restored and 196 foxes were paid for at $588. And this year that figure was doubled, with 403 foxes killed at $1209 cost to

Lest this letter be brushed off as a sentimental plea from a woman, consider that leading wildlife authorities say that the bounty system is useless and wasteful - a throwback to the time when all animals were divided into two classes - the useful and the "varmints".

Men arbitrarily assumed that the "varmints" had no right to life and slaughtered them relentlessly. Although conservationists now agree that predators have a useful necessary role to play in nature, many counties, ours among them, do not heed these findings.

May I quote one nature lover well known in this district, Mr. Lide, for many years the game warden here in Columbiana County, most strongly opposed the paying of bounties. As he so justly pointed out, a man who enjoys fox hunting will do it any way, bounty or no bounty, as the animals enjoy no protection. Moreover, he stated that there is no assurance that the foxes on which the bounty is paid were actually caught in our county. We may be paying bounty on foxes from Beaver or Hancock coun-

If any of you agree with me that we could certainly use this $1,209 to much better advantage, why don't you let the county commissioners know how you feel when you pay your taxes soon due.

Have been watching with interest the activities of the new Hancock County sheriff's office in action.

I am 100 per cent behind any party that will try to uphold the law. So many times different factions try to move in, then we have a lull between until it is decided which man will control and operate.

I am not against selling liquor or gambling as long as it is confined to adults. The way the county has been run goes against most people. If you have the money, age doesn't mean a thing. I don't mean all taverns. Lots of taverns want to observe the laws. But the "Strip" seems to think it is immune. I will back our new sheriff as long as he is on the job to stop the teen-agers from patronizing the bars.

Cunningham said he feels sewers and manholes should be installed in the big tract and it then could be filled with some of the earth that will be removed in the St. Clair Ave. rebuilding project.

Councilman Norman Bucher said he received a similar letter. Council already has made some investigations of the site, he said. However, Bucher suggested referring the question to the new City Park Commission.

Councilman Donald Hancock said he has checked the property two or three times. He said the project could be handled cheapest with street department labor. He suggested contacting the contractor to determine if fill dirt could be obtained. The motion then was approved to refer the project to the park commission.

COUNCILMAN William Davis asked a study of the need for a stop sign at Sherwood Ave. and Boring Ln. He said there has been "several near-accidents" at the intersection and added he feels the sign should be placed so as to give the rightof-way to drivers on Boring Ln. The suggestion was referred to the street committee for investigation.

The street committee also was given a petition with six signatures asking a ban on parking in Tip-Top Alley between Green Ln. and Woodlawn Ave.

His immediate predecessors

Junior Editors Quiz on-THE GORDIAN KNOT

QUESTION: What is meant by "cutting the Gordian knot?

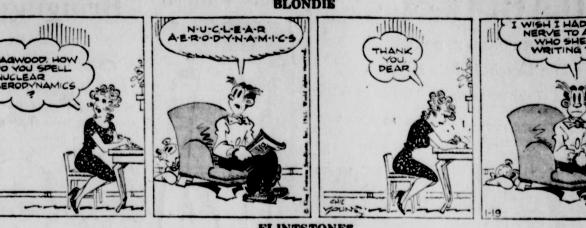

ANSWER: This saying came from an old legend about Gordius, king of Phrygia in Asia Minor. Some peoples, long ago, believed in oracles, or place where communications from the gods were supposed to originate. An oracle at Phrygia had advised that the first person who rode to the temple in a cart be selected as king. When the peasant Gordius appeared in his ox cart, he was acclaimed as ruler. In gratitude, Gordius dedicated his ox cart to the temple. The oracle spoke again, predicting that whoever might untie the complicated knot connecting the ox yoke to the shaft would become king of all Asia.

Then along came bold, ambitious prince Alexander from Macedonia, one of the Greek city states. In 334 B.C., he had set out with his armies in an attempt to conquer the world. Hearing about the legend of the Gordian knot, Alexander journeyed to the Phrygian temple. Instead of trying to untie the knot, the young prince drew his sword and sliced it through. Ever since, cutting the Gordian knot has meant finding an unexpectedly simple solution to a tangled, complicated situation.

FOR YOU TO DO: Alexander cut the knot-but did the oracle's words come true? Look up Alexander the Great in an encyclopedia and read the amazing story of his 10-year march of conquest and the empire which resulted from it.

Kym Foster of Muncie, Ind., wins this week's grand prize of a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you may win the weekly prize or the daily prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash.

An AWOL soldier from Salem was fined $100 and costs Monday in Municipal Court after pleading guilty to an assault and battery charge filed by police.

Carl Lee Baker drew the fine from Judge Samuel M. Chertoff on the charge filed by Patrolman R. J. Brookes. The officer told the court that he saw Baker knock down a man identified as Lanny Johnson early Sunday in Diamond Alley.

A non - support charge against Baker, filed in November, 1963, was dismissed by Judge Chertoff at the request of the complaining witness, Mrs. Judith Baker, 1610 Globe St.

Police said Baker is also wanted as a deserter from Ft. Carson, Colo.
